Review

The Promise Mafia Vows Two is a well-made action thriller that keeps you entertained from start to finish. The film has a strong cast, a gripping story, and some well-executed action sequences.

Vivek Oberoi is excellent in the lead role. He brings a lot of intensity to the character of ACP Yash, and he is believable as a man who is determined to avenge his wife's death.

Jackie Shroff is also good as don Rajveer. He is menacing and intimidating, and he makes a worthy adversary for Oberoi's character.

Suniel Shetty is solid as don Bhau. He is a powerful and ruthless don, but he also has a softer side. Shetty brings a lot of charisma to the role.

Amitabh Bachchan is a welcome addition to the cast. He plays don Babubhai, a powerful don who is a mentor to both Oberoi's and Shroff's characters. Bachchan is always a pleasure to watch, and he brings a lot of gravitas to the role.

The story is well-paced and engaging. There are plenty of twists and turns, and the film keeps you guessing until the very end.

The action sequences are well-executed and exciting. The film does not shy away from violence, but it is not gratuitous. The violence is always in service of the story.

Overall, The Promise Mafia Vows Two is a well-made action thriller that is sure to entertain you from start to finish. The film has a strong cast, a gripping story, and some well-executed action sequences.
