Brain Teaser: There are three boxes, each containing two balls. One box has two white balls, one box has two black balls, and one box has one white ball and one black ball. The boxes are labeled "white," "black," and "mixed," but each label is incorrect. You can only pick one ball from one box. How do you determine which box is which?

Answer: Pick a ball from the "mixed" box. If it's white, then the "white" box must have black balls, and the "black" box must have the remaining white ball and the other black ball.
